Advance Due to Difficulty in Bo rowing the Stock-Day Closes wi Net Gains in Most Active Stock Cotton Prices Up in Sensation Manner-Money Rates Unchanged

New York, Aug. 29.—The brisk upward movement in the first hour to-day, which was the only period in which the market was at all active, was impelled very Missouri Pacific largely by the circumstances that before N. On few occasions in the past has Steel common—of which the amount outstanding, $500,000,000, is greater than of any other stock—been so Union Pacific com. difficult to borrow as to force speculators short of the market to bid a flat price, and the extraordinary loaning rate today gave the outward appearance of a short interest that was widely overextended and a market that was again heavily oversold.

Speculators short of stocks accordingly bought in heavily in the early trading, and before the covering movement subsided there were gains of one and threequarters points in Steel common and one to three points in the other active stocks. But it became known subsequently that only a small amount of stock had been borrowed flat, brokers offering to lend the stock finding no takers at that rate after the opening, and traders on the floor were divided in the opinion as to whether or not the extraordinary loaning rate was a market

Tone Firm Throughout.

The trading was again almost entirely in the hands of floor traders and other experienced operators, and after the technical position of the market had been rendered less strong as a result of the impulsive covering in the early trading. stocks sold off from the high prices. Throughout the session, however, the tone was firm, and the close showed substantial net gains on the day in most of the active stocks. In the cotton market developments were much more lively and sensational th in stocks. Cotton for immediate delive and on contracts maturing this mon sold up more than 3 cents a pound, $15 a bale to the extraordinary price 20 cents a pound, or $100 a bale. The pri was a reminder of cotton values in ci war times, and has, in fact, not been ceeded since 1873, but in stock market t cotton incident passed without influen It was everywhere realized that the vance simply marked the culmination of speculation or corner in which but a persons were engaged, that very little c ton was sold at the high prices, and th none of the speculators with heavy of mitments in August cotton had a positi

As displaying the purely speculative i ture of the advance in August cotton was significant also that the new cr options declined, while August was scoring its sensational advance. The October and later options sold around 131/2 cents a New York, Aug. 22.—Money on call at the stock pound, while August cotton sold 61/2 cents exchange to-day opened at 11/2 per cent; highest 2; lowest, 11/4; closing 11/4 per cent. Comments were generally favorable on President Taft's tariff letter, and some of the covering of short contracts was due to it, for it was realized that many specuto it, for it was realized that many speculators had been misled by advance reports of the President's utterances. Crop news was generally favorable, and bot the wheat and the corn options declined

Money rates remained substantially changed. The banks shipped $700,000 Canada and $100,000 to New Orleans, there was a brisk outward flow to oth interior centers, but the movement crop purposes showed not the slight sign of taxing the extraordinary prepa tions the banks have made to meet it.

COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—The market was quieter during the late afternon, but prices were firm and worked up to 9 and 5 over Saturday's for the general list urder the lead of September. This was on what appeared to be renewed buying on the centinued dry weather in Texas, offsetting the more favorable crop accounts from other sections of the belt. August advanced again from 18.20 to 13.70 on evidence of more covering of shorts and little bears to tremble all they wanted at the 20 cent figure, one of the bills in the early trading as the basis at which they were willing to unload some of their long cotton.

Those who found themselves in the position of having only three days in which to cover their shorts for August and without the necessary resources on which to base those deliveries, had to go into the ring and buy cotton at whatever the bulls tranted. Some of the brokers who looked about them last week figured that the bulls owned just about all the cotton of contract grade in this port—103.000 bales. It is estimated that they have received since last March 670,000 bales, of which about 75,000 bales came back from Liverpool on account of strained conditions among the shorts on the other side. all this cotton coming and going in the hands of a few men, the bears held tight to their position, with the idea apparently, that the litigation which is now pending, in the shape of indictments still hanging fire in the Federal courts against some of the bull leaders, there would come a break in the maneuvering and a short position would not be untenable. The conditions in cotton, which at least made possible the August deal, contain two disturbing elements. One is that the past season did no better than 10,350,000 bales against 12,850,000 last year, and the
